

At-Large Director, Family Law or Disability Rights

Position Description | Board of Directors | Remote, United States

ABOUT THE ORGANIZATION

EDquity at the Margins is a Tennessee nonprofit corporation and an IRS-recognized 501(c)(3) public charity, EIN 42-2295582. We review IEPs for families who cannot afford an advocate and we deliver free workshops on parent rights. Every family service is free. Our reviews are scored blind against a rubric grounded in the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and the Endrew F. standard.

PURPOSE OF THE POSITION

This director brings legal judgment to work built directly on federal law. Our published guidance must hold up against current IDEA case law and state regulation. This seat also lets the board see legal risk before it becomes a problem.

REPORTS TO

The Board of Directors as a whole.

TERM

Three years, renewable. The board elects directors and records the election in the minutes.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THIS POSITION

- Advise on family-facing services, published guidance, and the organization's legal compliance posture.
- Shape program design so reviews and workshops reflect current IDEA case law and state special education regulation.
- Review family-facing materials for legal accuracy and accessibility. These include workshop curricula, report templates, and consent forms.
- Cultivate relationships with disability rights groups, family law clinics, and education advocacy networks.
- Identify legal and reputational risk early and bring it to the board.

RESPONSIBILITIES SHARED BY EVERY DIRECTOR

- Advise on strategy and support the growth of the organization.
- Serve as a subject matter expert in your field and contribute to programming.
- Participate in fundraising. Share our work with your network, make introductions, and help identify potential contributors.
- Present alongside the Executive Director at events and conferences when you are able.
- Complete a conflict of interest disclosure each year and recuse yourself where it applies.
- Keep board deliberations, applicant information, and family information confidential.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS

EDquity at the Margins

- Background in special education law, family law, disability rights advocacy, parent training and information centers, or IDEA dispute resolution.
- Ability to translate legal requirements into language a family can act on.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

- Current or former practice as an attorney, judge, or law school faculty member.
- Leadership experience at an advocacy organization.
- Experience as a parent advocate in IEP disputes.
- Lived experience as the parent or caregiver of a child with a disability.

TIME COMMITMENT

- Six board meetings a year. Meetings are virtual and run ninety minutes.
- Service on at least one standing committee. Committees meet monthly during a founding year and quarterly after that.
- Five to eight hours a month during a founding year. Established years require about three hours a month.

SCOPE OF THE ROLE

Directors do not work with families directly. Directors do not review individual cases, attend IEP meetings, or advise families about their children. One exception applies. A director volunteering at a conference or community event may talk with parents and explain what the organization offers.

COMPENSATION

This is an unpaid volunteer position. We do not require a personal financial contribution. We do not judge any application on whether the applicant can give.

WHAT WE PROVIDE

- Orientation and an onboarding packet covering the bylaws, the conflict of interest policy, and the board agreement.
- Meeting materials distributed before every meeting.
- A background check. We pay for it, and we complete it before you are seated.

HOW TO APPLY

Apply at edquityatthemargins.org/board. One application covers the board and the advisory council. Direct questions to info@edquityatthemargins.org.
